

December 1999 Meeting

(Click here to see some photos of the event)

Tried-and-True Writing Advice--Six Tips that Worked for Me from Lori Fairweather, author of Blood and Water.

Earlier this year, Publishers Weekly wrote: "With well-drawn characters, convincing dialogue and tight prose, Fairweather's suspenseful debut thriller pulls the reader through plot twists as sudden and sharp as the Pacific coast highway."

Ms. Fairweather is a former newspaper reporter and attorney with degrees in journalism and law from the University of Utah and Yale Law School. When asked about her talk at our meeting, she replied: "I'm planning to share the half-dozen-or-so bits of fiction writing advice that have proven most valuable to me as an aspiring and now published mystery/suspense writer."

Lori started her professional writing career as a sports reporter and columnist for The Salt Lake Tribune in Salt Lake City, where she covered college sports, women's sports, skiing and professional volleyball. She's also a former ski instructor and professional freestyle skier. The writer lives in San Francisco with her husband, Dan Schryer, and their twin daughters. She is a member of the NorCal Branch of the Mystery Writers of America.

Links to Lori Fairweather info:

Barnes & Noble

Borders

Return to main page.

Return to Previous Meeting index